

ABSTRACT

The invention concerns a biological method for decontaminating mycotoxins present in a liquid food product by adsorbing them onto insoluble vegetable fibers, and a brewing method comprising at least one decontamination step according to said method, as well as food products at least partly detoxified obtained by implementing said method.